

Let the Little Children Come Unto Me

Read the article here: <https://tlhs.us/2r8gsCl>

Some Key Takeaways

- Take some time to enter into your child's world and do things that THEY are interested in!
- Playing in our kids' world helps us better know who they are and what is going on in their life.
- When we don't enter into our children's world by playing with them, we are basically telling them that an important part of their lives is actually trivial.
- When we are busy being more important to ourselves and the world than we really need to be, we miss opportunities to teach our children important lessons about life.
- Playing with our children now helps create bonds that will help us deal with tougher issues down the road.
- Playing with our children shows them that we value them enough to put down our important stuff just for them.
- Playing with our children gives us the opportunity of laughing and enjoying things together in the midst of a stressful day!
